The persian covenant war

"Hello Prophet of mercy! I wanted to let you know that we humans are going to find you eventually and that you may be able to hold off the some of our ships but not all of them. Xerxes said. Xerxes started to hold his breath the he shouted. You shall not live any longer you are going to be burned and you'll burn until you become pure glass! You will not survive the oncoming fire from us humans we will show no mercy! I don't care if we kill ourselves to murder you we will do whatever it takes to kill the covenant! Don't think I'll let you live you infested and inferior beings we will cleansed your filthy bacteria infested planets then we will kill all your children your women your pride your honor! Xerxes said. Then Xerxes sent the message to the covenant and got down from his chair and started walking out of the captain's room. As he walked down the hall he saw a group of grunts and two elites staring at him so he got out his energy sword and growled at his slaves. The slaves started to tremble in fear when one of the grunts squealed so loud that the corporals and Spartans came running through the doors. The elites started to tell the grunt to shut up. Why are you screaming like a banshee! You are causing attention to the humans! Do you wish to get are heads blown off? The grunt looked down in embarrassment. The grunt said I'm sorry for my dishonor my Excellency, it won't happen again. Then Xerxes continued walking towards the door.
